PLAN NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN FACTIONS TO NAME PRESIDENT

A. B. C. DIPLOMATS HOPE TO DRAW CONSTITUTIONALISTS INTO CONFERENCE.

MEDIATORS' LAST CARD

Plans as Being Outlined in Last Result of Envoys to Settle Strife in Mexico.

By Associated Press.
Mexico City, June 22.—Actual negotiations between the two fighting factions in Mexico, in an effort to agree on an individual for the provisional presidency, is the latest plan which the mediators have evolved for the solution of the Mexican problem. Just how the two will be drawn together remained a secret today and it became known that strong pressure had been brought to bear on General Carranza through the American government and that the mediators had persuaded the Huerta government to come into the plan.

Information passed between the representatives of the two factions outside of the informal mediation proceedings, but within the counsel and advice of the American delegates, is the object of this new move. The appeal which is said to have influenced both factions is that the Mexicans themselves must save their own country from spoliation and bloodshed, by each making certain sacrifices, but either side will be asked to abandon the principles for which they have been contending. It will be several days before the plan will materialize and constitutionalists can arrive.

The determination seems to be to leave the question of provisional president to the two Mexican factions to decide.

The advantage of the new plan, it is said, is that the conferences will be continued while the situation in South Mexico is developing. Fernando Iglesias Calderon, leader of the liberal party in Mexico, is understood to be the head of the delegates appointed by Carranza to attend the informal conference here.

The Huerta delegates are understood to have consulted their government and secured permission to deal with the constitutionalists.

At the conference between the American delegates and the mediators, Justice Lamar said he had not been authorized to make any statement. He indicated, however, that the proceedings would be prolonged, but that he was given up to what had been discussed. A few minutes later the Mexican delegates were summoned for a conference with the mediators.

Invited to Conference.
The United States government had invited representatives of General Carranza and General Huerta to meet at an informal conference here, with the hope of bringing about the pacification of Mexico.

The Huerta delegates today informed the American delegates that the mediators were that they were willing to deal with the constitutionalists in this way.

Washington, June 22.—President Wilson and his advisors today were taking up the new course of action proposed by the South American envoys designed to prolong the mediation conference with the hope of an eventual settlement of the Mexican problem.

Despite Carranza's reiterated stand against the discussion of the republic's internal affairs, the mediators, it was declared, had not given up hope of bringing the constitutionalists into touch with the Huerta conference.

Confirmation was awaited here today of a report that the United States had invited Carranza to send his representative to Niagara Falls to confer with the Americans.

PLANNING TO PRESS DISSOLUTION SUIT AGAINST NEW HAVEN

Government Will Start Action Unless Massachusetts Takes Steps Outlined by McReynolds.

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 22.—President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds are agreed that the dissolution suit against the New Haven railroad must go forward unless the Massachusetts legislature empowers the holders to sell its Boston and Maine stock.

President Wilson told inquirers today that unless the legislature acted in line with the suggestions of the attorney general the only course left open to the department of justice would be to go ahead with the Sherman law suit which had been held up according to the agreement between Chairman Elliott of New Haven and Mr. McReynolds.

When negotiations for the peaceful dissolution of the New Haven merger approached a point several weeks ago where a settlement without a prolonged contest in the court seemed assured, Attorney General McReynolds agreed to hold back the government suit until July 1.

Officials here expect to see the suit filed before the expiration of the time limit set by Mr. McReynolds unless the legislature takes the action recommended by the governor and the federal government.

AVIATOR AND BRIDE ARE SAFELY LANDED

Harry N. Atwood and Wife Beaten Down by Storm During Perilous Flight Over Lake Erie.

By Associated Press.
Toledo, Ohio, June 22.—Aviator Harry N. Atwood and his bride, supposed to have been drowned in Lake Erie from flying in an airplane from Sandusky to Toledo yesterday during the electric storm, are safe at Bond on the lake shore, twelve miles east of Toledo.

At five o'clock this morning Atwood telephoned to Toledo that his airplane had been beaten down by the storm to a small island, and he later made way to the mainland in a rowboat. Atwood did not say what island. He said he expected to continue the flight to Toledo today.

S. senate of the Colombian treaty. The ministers making the protest are Dr. Ensebia A. Morales, representing Panama; Raphael M. Arizaga, Ecuador; and Senator Don P. Ezequiel Rojas, Venezuela.

GUILTY OF SELLING LIQUOR ON SUNDAY

Louis Alwin, Owner of South River Street Saloon, Must Pay $35 Fine.—Boys Buy Whiskey.

Testimony of two farmer boys was sufficient to convict Louis Alwin, owner of a saloon at 51 South River street, on the charge of violating the city ordinance, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquor on Sunday. Judge H. L. Maxfield, in municipal court, this morning taxed Alwin with a fine of $35 and costs, or $42.23, following a short trial.

The boys, who reside between Evansville and Postville, one seventeen years of age and the other barely twenty-one, testified that they had bought Alwin seven cents on Sunday evening and that the saloon owner agreed to leave them a pint and a half of whiskey in the rear of his saloon. Instructions were also alleged to have been given by Alwin to have the boys approach his saloon in a round about way to escape detection.

Policeman Lorenzo Cain became suspicious of the youths' actions and followed them to the rear of the saloon. As they were unable to give a satisfactory reason for their presence there the boys were brought to the station, after they had attempted to run away. Officer Cain found the whiskey behind a barrel in the rear of the saloon, and Chief of Police Champion this morning swore out a warrant for Alwin's arrest.

When arraigned before Judge Maxfield Alwin entered a plea of not guilty and City Attorney Dougherty, who made out the warrant for violating the city ordinance, asked that the case be tried immediately. Alwin did not have an attorney, and after testimony was taken from the boys, Chief of Police Champion and Officer Cain, Alwin and his bartender, Judge Maxfield rendered a decision of guilty and imposed the fine.

On motion of Attorney Dougherty Alwin was released in the custody of Chief of Police Champion and given until two o'clock tomorrow afternoon to pay his fine. In default of payment a fifty day sentence in the Rock county jail was provided for by the court. As Alwin has presented an application for a new license and the council will consider the application before July 1st, the conviction will probably be taken into consideration in granting the license for the coming year. The license held by Alwin was one transferred by the council from August Lentzke two months ago.

FIND MEN AND GIRL IN RAILROAD TOWER

Police Surprise Trio Enjoying Can of Beer at Jackson Street Crossing.

Tony Martin, watchman at the Jackson street railroad crossing; Bert Premo, said to be a minor, and Maud Lawrence, a twelve year old girl, were surprised by Policemen Sam Brown and Will Gower at noon today at the railroad company's tower where the three were enjoying a can of beer. The policemen believe that Martin sent Premo to purchase the beverage and at a late hour this afternoon the three were being held at the police station pending the outcome of the investigation.

ASSOCIATION PLANS A HEALTH CAMPAIGN

Conservation of Public Health Earnestly Sought by Medical Society in Conference.

By Associated Press.
Atlantic City, N. J., June 22.—Wrestling with the world wide problem of public health, which is to be undertaken with renewed vigor by the American Association, this broader aspect of public health conservation was taken up at the annual meeting of the association today at the sixty-fifth annual meeting of the association.

Today's session was that of the house of delegates, the legislative body of the association, which now represents a membership of 41,023. Their report shows a balance of more than $140,000. Among the expenditures for the year were $51,465 for education and more than $10,000 for "propaganda against frauds and fakes."

MAY NEVER RECOVER BODIES OF MINERS

More Than a Hundred Men Entombed in Hillcrest Shaft Are Buried at Depth of a Thousand Feet.

By Associated Press.
Hillcrest, Alta., June 22.—Government mine experts who continued today the search for the dead in mine No. 20, Hillcrest collieries, which was wrecked by an explosion, entombing 155 miners last Friday, said probably that the 102 victims still in the mine were buried beneath tons of rock more than a thousand feet from the mouth of the pit, and some of the bodies would never be recovered.

The majority of the ninety-one bodies rescued up to early today, were buried beyond recognition, and but little effort was made to identify them.

Although it is understood an official investigation will be made into the cause of the explosion conducted by the owners, no explanation of its origin has been made. The generally accepted theory is that the disaster was due to an explosion of gas which had accumulated in the lower levels. Discoveries by rescuers of fifty bodies lying in one of the tunnels of mine No. 20 of the Hillcrest collieries limited today, brought up to 131 the total of recovered dead at the mine which was wrecked by an explosion Friday.

Eighty grave diggers worked all day in the little cemetery outside of the village and by night it is expected the greater portion of the former male population of the mining colony will be resting there.

HEAVY STONE FALLS ON WORKMAN'S LEG

Roy Austin Suffers Only a Sprain When Block Weighing Nearly a Ton Falls on Member.

Roy Austin of Mineral Point, Wisconsin, who has been employed as a stevedore by Charles Thompson, had his right foot badly sprained shortly after nine o'clock this morning, when a twelve hundred pound granite stone fell upon his leg. That a more severe injury did not result is miraculous and it was at first thought that his foot had been crushed.

Austin was driving a load of monument stones to the platform of the Janesville monument company on South Franklin street and in going up the crosswalk, the largest of the stones started to tip. In an attempt to steady it, the piece fell over, catching Austin's leg, and throwing him between the wagon and the horses.

While in this dangerous position, hanging from the wagon, his outcries were heard and Charles Thompson, with the aid of a bystander, lifted the enormous weight Austin was taken to the office of Dr. Wayne Munn, where he was given medical attention. He was able to walk to the carriage to be taken home.

DEMS AND MOOSE BUSY IN CHICAGO

Chicago will soon witness the opening of the campaign for control of the next congress of the United States. The Progressives will establish headquarters with Oscar King Davis in charge. The Democrats will get busy with their congressional campaign at about the same place and time with Thomas J. Pence and Congressman Frank E. Doremus as the guiding spirits. The Republicans will also open headquarters in the Windy City, but have not yet announced the name of the man who will be in charge.

Truth

This is the motto of the advertising men of America who are holding a monster convention in Toronto this month. A higher standard of ethics than ever known is coming into advertising usage. Stringent laws are being passed in the various states making untruthful advertising a crime, and vigilance committees are seeing that they are enforced. There never was a time when greater safety surrounded the purchase of advertised goods. The road for the fakes grows harder each year.

BRING TRUST BILLS BEFORE THE SENATE

Senator Newlands Reports Three Measures Passed by House Out of Committee Today.

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 22.—The administration's anti-trust problem was expected to come before the senate for a final vote today. First on the program is the federal trade commission bill. This measure was recently completed by the committee on interstate commerce, of which Senator Newlands is chairman.

While the senate is expected to pass the bill, it is not expected that it will be passed before the adjournment of the session.

WIND STORM SWEEPS NEWARK AND BELOW

New Barn Just Completed on Garde Farm is a Total Wreck—Other Damage in Sunday's Storm.

A heavy electrical and wind storm which swept the northern section of Rock county Sunday afternoon between the hours of two and four o'clock blew down eight or a dozen barns, several outbuildings and a large barn at Beloit and Newark, while lightning struck six or seven places in the city of Beloit, inflicting slight damage. On the A. C. Garde farm in the town of Newark, a big barn which had just been completed, was completely demolished, the wind laying the structure flat. The rain fell in sheets and driven by the east wind, it made the crops, crops lodging the grain and washing through newly plowed fields of corn.

WILSON HOPES TO FORCE THROUGH THE TREATIES

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 22.—President Wilson believes that when the Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties are understood they will be amply supported in the senate. He made this clear to callers today, but refused to go into details. The treaties are pending before the foreign relations committee, before which Secretary Bryan again appeared today to continue his explanation.

RETRANCHMENT PLAN HAS A LARGE PLACE IN DAHL PLATFORM

Latest Candidate for Governor Gives Statement Denouncing Extravagance and Urging Economy.

By Associated Press.
Madison, Wis., June 22.—Andrew H. Dahl, of Vernon county, candidate for the republican nomination for governor today made public a declaration calling for a reduction of state expenses, a modification of the state highway aid law, retrenchment in building operations and cooperation between the governor and heads of departments in avoiding duplication of work. He points to the tremendous economic and financial progress of the state during the past fifteen years. The complete platform follows:

"Wisconsin is a great progressive state. In the last eight years its manufacturing products have increased from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 in value. During thirteen years the banking capital of Wisconsin has increased from $7,628,788 to $21,161,750, and the banking deposits have increased from $5,629,635 to $192,321,453.

"Under the influence of the agricultural college, Wisconsin has become the greatest dairy state in the union. It manufactures one-half of the nation's cheese and one-sixth of the nation's butter. It condenses enough milk each year to float four battleships.

"While depositors by thousands are clamoring at the doors of delinquent state banks in the neighboring states, Wisconsin, under its wise banking laws, can point to the fact that no depositor has lost a dollar in a Wisconsin state bank for thirteen years.

"While railroads have carried wreck and ruin to other states, in Wisconsin they have been safely controlled as the servants of our people.

"While neighboring states have had most disastrous and disastrous labor trouble, Wisconsin has been comparatively free from them.

"Wisconsin enacted the first compensation law for workmen and today it is the most complete act in existence, carrying to injured workmen more money promptly, with less expense of administration, than any other compensation act.

"Wisconsin's safety law has secured wonderful results in saving life and limb in the industrial field. To illustrate: Corn shredder accidents have been reduced one-half in one year.

"Wisconsin's progressive laws are famed in every state and nation.

"We will take no backward steps. Wisconsin citizens demand progress, but progress without extravagance. That there has been some extravagance and some unwise legislation, we cannot deny, but the fundamental progressive legislation attained.

"No state tax should be required to meet appropriations for general purposes annually a greater amount than kept within the revenues derived from corporations and other sources, and the state levy should be limited to the fixed mill taxes for educational purposes.

"The present large sums appropriated for state highway aid have put at the disposal of the highway commission annually a greater sum than can be economically expended. These appropriations should be reduced and greater control of the levying and expenditure of highway funds should be given to the local communities.

"Too Much Building.
The people have, in the recent town meetings, not only plainly demonstrated their opposition to high way laws, but also that a check be placed upon appropriations for new buildings, especially for the university and normal schools. In view of other pressing needs, the policy of building boys' dormitories at the university at this time, entered upon by the last legislature, seems unwise. The cost will eventually exceed $1,000,000. It should be reconsidered by the next legislature with a view of reducing the $350,000 appropriation heretofore made. Other appropriations for buildings should be extended over such period of years as will avoid burdensome tax levies.

"The way to economize in public affairs is through co-operation between all the departments of government. While the appropriations for highways and buildings are responsible for the greater part of the last state tax levy, it should not be forgotten that the every day expenditures also need watching. Good business methods must prevail all the time. Economy must be the watchword not simply during the campaign, but all the time every day, and every hour in the day.

WOULD NAME CULEBRA CUT IN HONOR OF GALLARD

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 22.—A proposal to rename Culebra cut along the Panama canal to Gallard cut, in honor of the late Colonel David D. Gallard, army engineer, who claimed the foot of the mountain and who by his devotion to duty contracted a malarial fever which led to his death, was laid before President Wilson today by Representative Finlay of South Carolina. Mr. Finlay said the president approved of the plan.

WILSON IS WILLING TO SELL BATTLESHIPS TO GREECE

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 22.—President Wilson told inquirers today that he was supporting the naval bill to sell the battleships Mississippi and Idaho to Greece. He has been asked by the press whether he would support the proposal that the battleships be not intended to be used in an immediate test. Mr. Wilson told callers that if he had an idea that the vessels were to be used against Turkey or any other nation he would not support the provision.

E. R. WINSLOW HAS REACHED THE COAST

Janesville Man and Wife Reach Los Angeles by Auto After Great Trip—A Letter.
Los Angeles Cal., June 16.—Editor Gazette:
Dear Sir: I will now tell you the first of our trip. We left Goldfield Sunday morning over a mountain road, a very narrow and dangerous road. You could look down for 200 or 300 feet, and then you crossed a valley for about twenty miles. We climbed another mountain and came down Westward Canyon with rock on both sides of the narrow road towering above our heads. This is a toll road where we paid 75c toll. An old gentleman owned this right of way, and keeps up this road which he says washes out every spring. The road had changed this canyon is very good, and it is twelve miles from top to bottom and had to use both brakes alternately for they would get hot. We arrived at big Pine at 5 o'clock where we stayed all night. Met a gentleman that is from here that is from Janesville; lived there thirty years ago in the Fredendall block, by the name of Tracy. He inquired of some of the older residents there and said he had heard from Janesville since he left here. Leaving here in the morning we rode over very sandy roads and some places high deep. Arrived at Inyokern, a small place on the railroad set in a sand pit you might say, for nothing but sand could be seen as far as you could look, and so hot you could not sleep. We left there the next morning at 5 o'clock to make long drives to the next city, which was Inyokern, over more sandy road, but we made good time and no trouble to get through the sand, but it was terrible hot crossing the Mojave desert. We arrived at Del Rio, Cal., at 2 o'clock and made camp. Los Angeles by evening, which we did at 6 o'clock. We had thirty-five miles of asphalt pavement and passed through the Newhall tunnel, which runs through a mountain. We did not see any orange, lemon or olive trees until we arrived at San Fernando. The rest of the state of California we passed over does not look any different than Nevada or Utah—mountains, sand, sage and cactus. But Los Angeles is some city, fine buildings and streets and good street car service, and it may be of interest to you to know how many miles I traveled and the cost. Well, we traveled 2,557 miles in twenty days riding and used 145 gallons of gasoline at an average cost of 23c a gallon, from 12c to 60c a gallon. For same and used 1/2 gallon of cylinder oil at a cost of $2.75. I average 17 1/2 miles to a gallon of gasoline and had no trouble at all with my Buick car, and had but three punctures and they all in the rear tires and the two front tires have the same kind I got in Janesville. That is a long way to carry wind, but it is in Janesville, and good the wind is in Janesville, and good the wind is in Janesville, and good the wind is in Janesville. We enjoyed the trip very much and saw a great many sights you can not see passing through on the train, and if any of our friends back home want to take an auto trip out here we will be glad to tell them anything that will benefit them. With regards to all Janesville.
E. R. Winslow.

COUNTY CAMP CLOSED ON SATURDAY NIGHT

First Annual Outing at Lake Koshkonong Resulted in Ten Days of Merriment—20 Boys Attended.
After ten days of recreation at Maple Grove Point, Lake Koshkonong, twenty Rock county rural Y. M. C. A. enthusiasts closed the first annual county camp and outing last Saturday night after a very successful vacation.
The crowd of youths were taken care of ably by county secretary J. A. Markham, assisted by Rev. Philip Gregory of Edgerton, and Carroll West of Milton Junction.
It was a good camp for the boys, as a good share of time was mastered the various swimming strokes, together with rowing, preparing eatables, and suffering the effects of a good sun-bath. For the first five days, Mrs. Nettie Gehring of Stoughton acted as cook for the boys. Being unable to stay during the other five days, and the failure to secure another head of the commissary department, the boys took up the job, and for five days, lived on their own efforts as amateur kitchen maids.
The small fee taxed each camper, that of six dollars, was none too large, and is a small amount when some bills for campers are taken into consideration. "A better time could not have been had," declare the boys. During the ten days, many visitors stopped off at the camp for a time from all over the county. J. A. Craig and son, Lloyd, and J. C. Kline of this city; Mesdames Duxstead and Scott of Clinton; George McLaughlin and family; Arthur Howarth of Rock Junction and M. Peters and family of Edgerton composed a few of those paying the campers a visit.
MANY ALUMNI HOME FOR SENIOR PARTY
Legion of Old-Grads From Janesville High School Plan Big Reunion at Dance Tomorrow Night.
Due to the fact that the date for the senior party was made so late this season, scores of old grads from the Janesville high school have made arrangements to be home and attend the function, which will be held tomorrow evening in the Assembly hall. Providing the weather is favored with a cool breeze, it is expected that two hundred couples, including high school students, alumni and others, will participate in the evening's program of two-steps, altizes, tango and hesitation glides, with perhaps the introduction of the latest tango one-steps and tango Argentine, recently originating in the east. The abandonment of the dance banquet has created a sort of unrest among the alumni, and for this reason, a large number of couples will undoubtedly put in an appearance tomorrow evening.
The committee composed of Karl Frick, chairman; Edward Atwood and Louis Hayes, have completed extensive plans for the annual affair. The hall is to be beautifully decorated for the occasion, with the George L. Hatch nine piece orchestra furnishing the inspiration.

SUIT WILL NOT BALK WORK OF VALUATION

Hearing Before Railroad Commission Will Be Held Wednesday As Scheduled.
The railroad commission will take up the valuation of the water works notwithstanding the suit instituted by the trustee for the bondholders of the company. The points in issue in this matter are similar to those now being litigated in the cities of Racine and Oshkosh. The Racine case is set for a hearing in the federal court on June 29, but will probably be adjourned awaiting the decision in the Oshkosh case, which is to be heard before Judge E. Fay Stevens on the 15th of July. Chairman Koerner of the railroad commission informed City Attorney W. H. Dougherty over the telephone this morning that the railroad commission would continue its investigation unless restrained by the court.
Mayor Bathers intends to be present at the valuation hearing before the state railroad commission on Wednesday, and unless an injunction is served checking further proceedings the city will seek to secure a satisfactory valuation figure for the water company's property. Plans as now outlined indicate that the city will contest the present suit to the limit and as a corresponding action is before the court over the Racine case, the matter may possibly be dropped pending the outcome of this action, because of its important bearing on the Janesville case.
Shifted down to its final analysis the bondholders' suit is another step to balk the purchase of the plant by the city, according to the opinions of city officials freely expressed today. The action is taken into the United States court because the state of Illinois, for the bondholders of the company, is a resident of the state of Illinois. What opinion Attorney General Owens has taken over the litigation is not known, but it is evident that the railroad commission has been legally advised to proceed with the valuation of the plant.

STUDENTS COMMENCE SUMMER WORK TODAY

Rock County Training School and High School Summer Review Work Began Today.
With an unusually large attendance the summer schools of this city opened this morning at the high school building. The attendance at the Training School far exceeded that of any previous session, the number being ninety-five. In the domestic science course which was started for high school pupils about thirty were enrolled, while the geometry section had an attendance of thirty-five.
The summer Training School attendance previous to this year has never been over sixty. Principal Lowth stated today that he expected to see the number of students reach over one hundred by the end of the week. The grade school, which is being run in connection with the training school at the Lincoln school, met this morning with an attendance of forty children. This school includes the children in the first four grades who wish to make up their back work of the winter terms.
The domestic science course, which is being offered under the direction of Miss True Hyland at the high school, also had a banner opening. There still remains, however, room for several more in the class, so that any son of the high school age or older may join in the class which meets at eight o'clock each morning.
Allan B. West, Jr., a graduate of Oxford, and a son of Allan B. West, instructor in geometry at the high school, has charge of the geometry students who are taking up the summer work, the number in this class is very large because of the fact that a number of the students are taking this course in preparation for the school year opens in the fall.
A new feature will be introduced into the Training School when the University of Wisconsin will show a series of moving pictures to the students. This manner of instructing is a new idea in this state and is receiving fine support. Already over one hundred schools have applied for the pictures.

FANNING FAMILY ENJOYS REUNION PICNIC SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Fanning of Milton, their sons and daughters and their families, enjoyed a reunion picnic at McNally's pond on Sunday. There were fifty persons present and several were kept away on account of the weather conditions. Mr. and Mrs. John Doran of Los Angeles, were among the guests.
The guests also included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doran and family, Miss Genevieve McInley, Will McGinley and Mr. and Mrs. John Hemming, all of Janesville; Mr. and Mrs. William McCann and family, of Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fanning of Milton; and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McNally and family of Harmony. Dinner and supper were served and a very delightful time was enjoyed.

STORM STOPS GAME AT YOST'S SUNDAY; SOX IN TIE MATCH

Cloudburst Not Only Stops Ball Game But Soaks Spectators and Athletes.—White Sox Tie Nationals.

The rain jinx still followed the Janesville Cardinals nine to Yost's Park Sunday when after two innings of pushing against the Walworth County League stars a pouring rain sent the athletes and spectators to whatever dry or "near dry" spots that could be found on the grounds.

Those that sought refuge in or under the grandstand for the greater part of the torrent hit them. Those who were fortunate to obtain space in the cottages had to use force to fight the rain, and everyone had a wet time of it. The rain checked a wild and woolly slugout, with Cardinals trailing a three to two score at the end of the second inning. Butters started for the Cards, although his arm was in no condition for pitching, and Crandall arrived on the scene in the second, and along came the cloudburst in the next inning, ending the program. The All Stars scored their first run when Morrissey lifted a four base blow ten feet over the center field fence. The drive was one of the longest ever made at Yost's Park, and the ball went so far that even the ambitious kids did not stir after the pill, which was well on its way to Beloit. Wootton followed Morrissey with a two base clout, but died when Pye struck out.

The Cards went down without a struggle on infield outs. Council started for Janesville in the third, and Miller banged out a two base walk and the next man walked. Crandall was hurriedly put into the game, and after warming up showed the All Stars that they would have been reduced to some classy hurling had the rain kept away. Two more runs were scored by Stahl's hit, and then Crandall struck out the side, including Morrissey, the home run hitter, but to the delight of the local bugs.

The Cards found Stahl in the second when Hall was safe on Miller's beat and Butters lifted a fast one to the fence for a circuit punch. With the count three and two the game was called by umpire Cook.

Janesville Cardinals—Hall, c; Butters, Connell and Crandall, p; Porter, H; Sullivan, 2b; Heil, ss; Connell and Butters, 3b; Stewart, Berger and Nell, Stars—Stahl, p; Pye, c; Keough, H; Fields, 2b; Miller, 3b; Pyper, ss; Proctor, Wootton and Morrissey, 1.

Play Tie Game.

For six innings of errorless baseball and well played defense work the Janesville White Sox and Beloit Nationals battled to tie in the preliminary game to the Cardinal-All Star combat at Yost's. Doc Connell hurled for the Sox and struck out ten and allowed but two runs in the first round. The Sox were the first to score in the fifth inning, when Kennedy walked and Ryan helped the good cause along with a hit. Cronin and French walked, but Connell fanned out a two bagger. Kennedy scored, but Ryan was out at the plate. The Nationals tied the score in the sixth, when Kingston got a scratch hit over second owing to a base runner.

Summary. White Sox—Connell, p; Wilson, c; Stokely, 1b; Stewart, 2b; Britt, 3b; Ryan, ss; Kennedy, Cronin and French, f.

Beloit Nationals—Kutz, p; Kingston, c; McGilley, 1b; Madley, 2b; Gentry, 3b; Butler, 3b; Witte, Hoyhyrant and R. Gentryman, f.

Stars Won Game.

A two base hit by Spohn, scoring two runs, won the game for the Janesville Stars over the Nationals by a score of 5 to 2, at the Caloric grounds Sunday afternoon. The game was called in the seventh inning.

Byrne, twirler for the Nationals, was hit by a foul ball in the fourth inning, which cut his eye badly. A new pitcher, Monte, was put on the mound, and the Stars scored three runs in the seventh, winning the laurels. The Stars play at Orlinville next Sunday, and have not lost a game this year.

Summary. Stars—Spohn, c; Howelland, p; McGilley, ss; Miller, 1b; Selgren, 2b; Jackson, 3b; Roberts, f; Kakuska, c; Viney, rf.

Nationals—Hill, c; Byrne, Monte, p; Sullivan, 1b; McGilley, 2b; Berger, 2b; Brown, 3b; Prox, 1b; Flynn, cf; Bawell, rf.

Sport Snap Shots

Some of the headlines of the pitching profession are frequently posted on the walls of the press box, and ask all manner of questions. Naturally the pitcher in a case like this begins to feel after a while that he has been asked the same questions before. And naturally they get good and weary of it. A few years ago Mordecai Brown hit upon a fair scheme of dealing with this nuisance and it's a pity that other pitchers don't use the idea. Brown had a few thousand cards printed whereon was all of the following:

How is your arm? Great.
How do you feel? Fine.
How much do you weigh? 165 lbs.
How did you lose the two fingers? Accidentally.

And every fan who approached him with the usual line of fatuous queries was presented with one of the cards.

Here is another explanation of Cluffy Mathewson's title of "Big Six." Some years ago the National League was torn between two squabbling factions known as the Big Three and the Big Five. The St. Louis club at the time was in the habit of skipping from one side to the other, depending largely on which club owners it owed the most money. At a baseball meeting in New York one day a warm discussion arose as to who had done the most for baseball, the Big Five or the Big Three. And Jim Hart, at that time the Chicago owner, becoming wrathful, exclaimed, "Neither of them does anyone in ball games—it's the Big Six out there." Meaning Matty of course. And the name has clung to him since, though we hear little mention any more of the Big Three or Five.

Ralph Capron, a University of Minnesota football star of several years ago has shown equal speed in landing jobs at the diamond and behind the plate. He was in school by making a full field run with the ball for a touchdown against Wisconsin. Since retiring college he has been playing ball for a living and he has managed to travel around quite a bit at it. He has had at least a dozen different jobs on major or minor league teams since starting the professional game three seasons ago. He has appeared with Milwaukee, St. Paul, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and many others. And this year he has already been connected for a while with Baltimore, the Yankees and has recently signed up with Milwaukee again.

We cop the following from an exchange, deeming it well worth a distribution. It shows Willie Jones' examination papers and how he answered them.

Who settled New York and when? Willie's answer: The Athletics last fall.

Name the chief product of Georgia? Ans.: Thus Cobb.

What is meant by the Boston Tea Party? Ans.: Porter must be the party meant. His first name starts with a T.

What did Washington do at Valley Forge? Ans.: Washington never played there. It's not in that state.

Who founded Philadelphia and made a famous Indian treaty? Ans.: Connie Mack did. The Indian treaty was when he signed up Chief Bender.

The fans of Pittsburgh are real fretful over the slump their team has taken after starting the season so bravely and they have been not at all hesitant about making it clear to Fred Clarke changes his line-up in the hope of enlivening the team. He is loudly rebuked for playing so-and-so at such a position and every fan jumps and frets. And if the team has been having a losing streak, Clarke is roasted to a turn for not changing the line-up. At present they are being criticised in scathing terms for lack of head work.

The latest wire from Paris says that Moran is beginning to feel a little worried over his bout with Jack Johnson. "The con" is training very carefully and living in a sane and sensible manner.

Glimore has told his umpires to leave all foul plays to a dog trot on the way to the bat and to from their positions in the field between innings. It is thought that this will speed the game up quite a bit, to the entire approval of the fans.

THE APOLLO.

Admirers of Mary Pickford, and there are hundreds, if not thousands, in Janesville, will be delighted to know that she is to be featured here in another of her famous Players motion plays. She will appear to-night and Tuesday at the Apollo in Mrs. Fisk's great theatrical success, "Cavalcade." Miss Pickford takes the part of the mountain girl who is transformed into an attractive beauty of society. She is particularly strong in such parts and she has added much to her laurels with this production of Daniel Frohman's.

The Carl Hagenbeck and Great Wallace Shows combined will visit Janesville on Wednesday, June 24. For more than a quarter of a century the Great Wallace Circus was the best in all the land. Several years ago the big circus was consolidated with Carl Hagenbeck's trained wild animal exhibition. Carl Hagenbeck, before his death, was the "animal king," and the combination of the two shows for a single price of admission makes it something unheard of in the amusement world.

With few exceptions great are the acts originated in Europe. They are invariably introduced into America by the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, who maintain agencies in Europe and Asia for the purpose of keeping in touch with the latest developments.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows have either originated all great attractions in the past few years or have searched them out from distant lands. It has offices in London, Liverpool, Paris, Berlin, Hamburg, Vienna, Constantinople, Calcutta, Hong Kong and Buenos Ayres. Its agents are always looking for novelties. B. E. Wallace may justly be called the "circus king," as he has the largest individual circus owner in the entire world. His name has been listed by the mouths of two generations of children.

Today the circus has reached a size that is giving the railroads much concern. If the three trains were any longer they could not handle them. All of the equipment throughout this season is new. It cost the owner, Mr. Wallace, $3,000,000. The parade alone represents a cash outlay of $1,000,000. The menagerie is worth half as much. The best circus artists in the world have been engaged for this season; there are 387 of them.

Doors to the big show will be opened at 1 and 7 p. m. Performance will begin an hour later. The parade leaves the grounds at 10 o'clock.

PSYCHOLOGY AND BUSINESS.

The nation is embarrassed today, and its business disturbed, because our law-makers are under the dictation of a theoretical psychologist who insists that the present depression is due to the mental attitude of the industrial and commercial world. He is so tenacious in this belief that he gets warm under the collar when he is deluged with telegrams and letters, from men who are feeling the depression, asking that congress adjourn and give the country a few months of much-needed rest. It is bad enough that the nation is compelled to submit to democratic rule, for four years, and the sugar industry, as well as many other lines, already show the pernicious results of incompetency, but when in addition this a president who humbles his party like a lot of school boys, compelling them to do his bidding, the situation is infinitely worse. This man with the arrogance of a pedagogue, says to the business men of America: "You are only suffering from an imaginary grievance due to cobwebs in the brain. Business is all right if you only think so, and I am here as the supreme monarch, not only to regulate, but to educate you along the lines of right thinking. In other words come up to my level as a psychologist and all your troubles will fade away like dew in the morning sun."

His policy of "patient waiting" in the Mexican situation, is rapidly burning the policy of the nation, but the waiting is proving expensive and demoralizing. One of our manufacturers recently returned from Germany and reports that the factories in that country are loaded with orders. They claim that the new tariff has stimulated trade and they are making heavy shipments to America.

This means, of course, that every dollar's worth of foreign-made goods displaces the same amount of home production, and soon spells idleness to American workmen. Not satisfied to have upset some of our industries, with this kind of competition, every effort is now exhausted to force upon the business world a lot of burdensome regulations to satisfy the microscope of psychology. The whole proposition would be called a farce if results were not so serious.

THE LURE OF GOLD.

The lure of gold has ever been the basis for brave exploits and bold adventure, and often about it has been woven the enticing web of mystery and myth to add to the zest of its pursuit. The ancient Argonauts sailed in search of the mythical Golden Fleece, while the golden apples of the mysterious Hesperides lured on the giant Hercules. The bold Phoenicians sailed to the shores of Spain to gather a golden harvest for the merchants of Syria, and the old Semitic navigators sailed out from the Red Sea to seek it at Tarshish and in the famed mines of Ophir, whose location is even now a mystery. The Portuguese as early as the middle of the 15th century, brought gold from the west coast of Africa, and it was to find a sea route to the gold and spice-laden shores of the Far East that Vasco da Gama sailed around the Cape of Good Hope and Columbus finally embarked to venture into unknown seas upon that memorable voyage of 1492. The discovery of the new world but added a new stimulus to the unceasing, restless search for wealth, and in the marvelous tales of pearls and jewels rare and glittering golden ornaments decorating simple savages who knew but little of their value, the adventurous and credulous conquistadores saw a glorious land of promise.

Among the most enticing of these tales was the one the Conquistadores told the earliest settlers of the colony of Coro, established by Juan de Ampues in 1497 on the narrow isthmus that connects the peninsula of Paraguaná with the mainland about the Lake of Maracaybo in Venezuela. According to their stories, a tribe of fierce but wealthy Indians in the mountains some distance to the south, with whom gold was so abundant that they powdered the whole body of their chief with its dust. And thus was started the tale of "El Dorado," the gilded one, a tale which in its repeated telling grew into most wonderful fiction but which was founded in its first instance on a fact, is now established the fact that "a chieftain who was gilded for certain ceremonial occasions once really existed on the tableland of Bogota, in the Province of Cundinamarca, in the heart of New Granada."

On this high plain dwelt the agricultural village Indians known as the Muisca. They wore cotton cloth, mined emeralds, and also salt. These products were exchanged for the gold of other tribes, and by thrift and industry the precious metal was accumulated to superfluity on the tableland of Bogota. On the plateau were several lakes which were regarded by the Muisca as holy places. Each of them was the supposed seat of a special divinity, to which gold and emeralds were offered by throwing them into the water. Among those the Lake of Guatavita became famous. Near the lake lay the village of Guatavita, whose inhabitants about the year 1490 constituted an independent tribe.

A legend was current among them that the wife of one of their earlier chiefs had thrown herself into the lake to avoid a punishment, and had subsequently become the goddess of the lake. When a new chief of Guatavita was chosen an imposing ceremonial march was observed. The made population marched out in a long procession to the lake. In front walked wailing men, nude, their bodies painted with red ochre, the sign of mourning. Groups followed, richly decorated with gold and emeralds, their heads adorned with feathers, and wearing robes of jaguar skins. Some were uttering joyful shouts, others blew on horns, pipes, and conchs.

There were priests in long black robes adorned with white crosses, and black caps. Behind them came the nobles of the tribe and chief priests, bearing the newly elected chieftain upon a barrow hung with disks of gold. His naked body was anointed with resinous gums and covered all over with gold dust. This was the gilded man. Arrived at the shore, the gilded chief and his companions stepped upon a balsa and proceeded upon it to the middle of the lake. There the chief plunged into the water and washed off his metallic covering, while the assembled company, with shouts and sound of instruments, threw in the gold and jewels brought as offerings.

The ceremony completed, the chief returned to the shore and all went back to the village to close the festival with dancing and feasting. Thus was the occasional ceremonial of a primitive tribe of Indians the real basis of a legend which passed from tongue to tongue until it lured men from far beyond the seas with the vain hope of conquest and of spoils.

Tonight comes the mass meeting of citizens to discuss and decide whether Janesville wants the proposed factory or not. It is a matter that will not permit of further delay and it must be decided this evening. It is something that everyone can take part in deciding and financing and it means much to the future prosperity of the city. Opportunities of a similar nature do not come frequently to any one community and delay means losing it.

If anyone questions the fact that the coming Janesville fair is not going to be a success they should visit the grounds of the Park Association and watch the activity in completing the preparations. Not only is the fair going to be a success, but the new buildings are an honor to the city and the association.

This is the holiday season, the vacation period, the rest period, and yet many who take what they call a needed recreation from work, actually suffer more hardships, endure more inconveniences seeking pleasure that they would permit under actual working conditions. Is it any wonder the summer months are called the silly days?

Another obstacle has been raised to prevent the citizens of Janesville from acquiring possession of the Janesville Water company. This time the action is brought in the federal court and as in the past, is a question of law. Perhaps in the course of ten or a dozen years the plant will be taken over by the city.

Colonel Nonesuch and his famous circus have arrived in the city and are preparing for their appearance on July Fourth, after a lapse of five years. The Colonel, like Santa Claus, is not only older than he was when he made his first bow to the Janesville public.

Pennsylvania has a primary law similar to the Wisconsin law and it is having just about the same troubles that Wisconsin has in its workings. It is all right in theory, but oh my, when it comes to practice it is something awful to contemplate.

Madison most anxiously awaits the old line republican convention which is scheduled to meet there Tuesday. Just what will be accomplished is hard to say but doubtless the men behind the movement feel they are justified in their action.

Beloit merchants are considering a genuine old-fashioned good road-building bee to improve the thoroughfares that lead into the city. Here is an idea that is worth considering.

On The Spur of The Moment

The Pessimist's Idea.

A yard or two of stuff that's called a skirt;

A waist that's made of some expensive lace;

A pair of shoes that are so tight they hurt;

Some sewing put in just the proper place;

A hat that costs nine times what it is worth;

A peck or two of someone else's hair;

Complexion bought most anywhere on earth;

A corset that is too tight everywhere;

A bundle of artistic temperament;

A row of conversation that is light;

A passing whiff of some delicious scent;

A show of vanity from morn till night;

And that's a woman.

A bag of wind inflated without cause;

A blowhard and an ardent egotist;

Who knows more than the ones who made the laws;

A set of teeth, a mustache and a first class wig;

Some shoulders that are padded out of shape;

A small, burned tobacco that is stale;

A blossom on the nose from festive grape;

Some stories that make modest folks turn pale;

A punk cigar that sizzles all day long;

A thing who's chiefest aim is just to eat;

A party that is right, all others wrong;

Who's always ninety-nine per cent conceit—

And that's a man.

Uncle Abner.

What has become of the old-fashioned groceryman who always wore his specs up over the top of his head and had to hunt around all over the store for them when he wanted to weigh out a pound of butter? Every small town has got two or three half-witted fellows and the indications are that most of 'em eventually get into vaudeville.

Lem Purdy started for West Hickoryville two weeks ago in his second-hand automobile, but when he got there he couldn't stop it and kept right on going. When last heard from he was passing through Peavory Junction. His wife says she believes Lem fixed his automobile that way a purpose.

One of our local teachers says singing is good for the health, but none of the grand old stars are in the business for that purpose.

No girl is a bit better than her town folks until she has spent one term at a finishing school. Anse Judson is sending his daughter to a finishing school and he says, judgin' by the checks he has to send, it will be his finish and not hers.

Lament of the Movie Man.

Turn, turn, turn,

This old film reel, Oh, Gee!

If I only dared to utter

The thoughts that arise in me.

They send me to Jericho,

They send me to Helsingfors,

They send me to Mexico—

I've got to record the wars.

They send me out to the sea,

Where the billows are beating past;

I must send a film back home

Of sailors lashed to the mast.

I'm sent to the dizziest heights,

I hang by my eyebrows there;

The task of my days and nights

Is to go where no others dare.

My life, pray, and what is that?

A pawn in the movie game,

I risk it ten times a day,

And no one e'er hears my name.

Musings of a Pessimist.

You start to save up money for a rainy day and the next day it begins to pour.

The only thing more uncertain than the weather is the affection of a chortler.

A woman will wear a bushel of false hair and a corset that is tighter than an automobile tire and then laugh at her husband for having his collar put a little padding in the shoulders.

A woman never says what she means unless she happens to be speaking to her husband and then she means what she says and a little more.

Why "Vudor" Porch Shades Are Needed:

You need Vudor Porch Shades to get the most out of your porch. To make it a spot where you can rest or work on the hottest days—outdoors, yet free from the sun's glare and heat.

You can do this with Vudor Porch Shades; you can add to the house another room cool and shady, where you may enjoy every refreshing breeze, in secluded comfort. Vudor Porch Shades are very durable and will last many seasons.

Another good feature about them is the peculiar fact that those sitting on the porch can see out, but passersby cannot see in. In other words you have complete privacy and can use the porch or veranda the same as an inside room with infinitely more comfort on hot days.

Vudor Porch shades are just the things for "boxing in" porches or sleeping balconies that are to be used as outdoor sleeping or living apartments.

Vudor Porch Shades are made of thin, flat strips of wood of the kind that best endures out of door exposure. These strips are closely bound together with Seine Twine, in a lock stitch weave.

They are artistically stained in soft, pleasing colors. These colors are weather proof, and will not fade or crack off.

The shades can be instantly raised or lowered (operating on the principle of a theatre curtain) and are easily and readily put up.

This is Vudor Weather. See display window.

FINANCIAL MILLENIUM UNDER NEW CURRENCY LAW, THINKS WILLIAMS

John Skelton Williams.

John Skelton Williams, controller of the currency, believes the new currency system will create something akin to a financial millennium in this country. In discussing the expectations of the administration in this particular recently, Mr. Williams expressed the conviction that the new banking law will disrupt the Wall street money trust, "put an end to plutocracy," decentralize wealth, and crush the "invisible government."

Had Told the Truth.

"Is the master of the house in?" inquired the smooth tongued book agent of the little boy who answered him sneering. "None," said the boy. "Little boys should not tell falsehoods," said the book agent. "Isn't that your fa-

the window?" "Yep," was the answer;
"that's pa, all right, but ma is out."

TO AID IN CLEARING ASSESSMENT TANGLE

Member of Tax Commission Will Adjust Figures on Electric Company's Property.

The Janesville Electric company's assessment tangle will claim the attention of the Janesville board of review when it opens its sessions at the city hall on Monday, July 6, and a member of the state tax commission will be present to assist in adjusting the different figures. The assessment of the company's property as determined by the group of assessors at a recent conference giving the company a substantial reduction, did not meet with the approval of the city commissioners who entered protest.

It was at first suggested, following a discussion of the matter by the tax commission and the local officials, that the controversy should be thrashed out before the entire tax commission at Madison, but it was finally agreed that it would be sufficient to have one of the commissioners attend the board of review meetings held in this city in order that both sides of the case might have every opportunity to present arguments. Other complaints on the local assessments will be held at this time but the objections to the present figure of $338,250 on the Electric company will be the most important.

The Perfect Husband.
My perfect husband, among a great many other qualities, must love like a Frenchman, attend to business like an American and dress like an Englishman. I have come back from America with a great admiration for the American man's devotion to business. If one were permitted to have three husbands he should certainly be one of them. This is how I would divide their labor: The Frenchman should be for the home, the Englishman for the street and the American for the office.—Poincaré in London Chronicle.

DISOWN WILSON AND HIS ADMINISTRATION

Recent Political Happenings Render Public Opinion Unsatisfactory.
—Congress Alarmed.
By Winfield Jones.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—That the people of the United States are preparing to utterly repudiate the Wilson administration is shown by recent political happenings. Administration leaders in congress are chagrined and alarmed by the defeat of Congressman Winfield S. Hammond, their candidate for democratic nomination for governor of Minnesota, by Daniel W. Lawler.

Mr. Lawler, in his campaign, opposed the president's economic policies, including repeal of Panama canal free trade and the tariff law. National Committeeman Fred Lynch, administration leader and democratic leader of Minnesota, made the fight for Hammond, who supported the president in his policies, including repeal of Panama canal free trade.

With Hammond's decisive defeat, it is felt that the administration machine in Minnesota has crumbled, a definite blow has been struck, and the president, through Lynch, has been repudiated by the Minnesota democrats. The Minnesota result is an indication of the indignation of the people with the Wilson administration, which will be expressed in no uncertain terms in the November congressional elections.

Farmers of the country are waking up to the harm they are suffering under the Wilson administration. It is a well recognized fact that farmers suffer more from the effects of free trade than any other class. Practically everything that northern farmers produce is put under free trade competition with the entire world. It is said that more than 5,000,000 bushels of wheat, the mills and factories are out of work. If that is true it means that 3,000,000 families, customers of our farmers, will have little income with which to buy food. When means to buy are restricted the sales in the markets are reduced. That market which is left is divided with Canadians and with Europeans. To this free trade inevitably leads. It is absolutely impossible for American farmers to compete with foreign producers. Farm wages in Europe are about one-fifth the wages paid in this country. In October, November and December, 1913, under the present tariff law, we imported seventy times as many bushels of potatoes and 972 times as many bushels of oats as we had ever imported in any other three months since the McKinley tariff law went into effect. The cash to pay for the imports has gone out of the country, thus limiting the scope of every kind of business.

There was a decrease of more than $18,000,000 in our purchases abroad of materials needed in home manufactures and an increase of $24,000,000 in the entered value—low foreign valuation of industrial products which we ought to have made at home with our own labor.

So much for the manufacturing department, in which many thousands of wage earners have been laid off because there was nothing for them to do; because the work that they had previously done, under a protective tariff, is now being done by foreigners, under the free trade tariff.

Spiteful.
"My husband considered a very long time before he proposed to me. He was very careful." "Ah, it's always those careful people who get taken in."

No Substitute.
There is no substitute for thoroughgoing, ardent and sincere earnestness.—Dickens.

BRAVES HEAT TO BE WITH HUSBAND

Mrs. John F. Shafroth.

Mrs. John F. Shafroth, wife of the Colorado senator and former governor of that state, is one of the devoted wives of congress who will brave the hot summer days to remain in Washington by their husbands' sides until congress finally adjourns. Every year during the extra session, which seems to have become a regular thing, the majority of congressional women leave the capital for cooler places, but there is always a few who believe that if their husbands have to endure it they must too, and Mrs. Shafroth is one of these.

demption.

Taking for his text the 14th verse from the sixth chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Galatians, Rev. T. D. Williams took the opportunity in his Sunday morning sermon yesterday to attack the Unitarian belief of the Christian doctrine, vividly discriminating between the Christian church's work as a great minister, and analyzing the cross and its importance. "But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world," are the words of the text.

"The Apostle Paul," began the speaker, "was one of the greatest preachers in the Christian church, and he has stood, as the head of the defenders of the world, in Christian history. He selected his main text from the crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ, and stuck to those texts."

"A strong belief today is that the necessity of the atonement is being denied, and that the elimination of the saving force from the religion of Christ, namely the cross, made possible, the world could go on identically the same. Books are being written constantly against the cross, each one expressing different views on the atonement and other phases of Christian life. The Unitarian believes that the innocent cannot suffer with the guilty. History says that the best die for the worst, that the innocent suffer for and die with the guilty. This fact is a law, both human and divine. Does the mother suffer for her child, her son? The son is taken away by an officer of the law, sentenced to the penitentiary, and back in the old home the mother is forced to shed many a tear, suffer many an ill, because of the work of her guilty son. In the civil strife of the sixties, the men of the north suffered for what trouble the south created. This was also true in the rebellion of 1861. It is a law of progress, I believe, that a nation that suffers, grows. It was our country, the United States, that sprang from martyrs and blood, left from the ill-fated English times, when Queen Elizabeth failed to recognize prosperity."

"If we sympathize with others who are going to suffer ourselves. Consequently, the teachings of the Unitarianists at the present progress which the world has set today. "If Christ did not die for the just, how are we to interpret the Scriptures? There is no way of doing so, unless this were possible. What did he say? 'I lay down my life for the sheep.' What did he mean when he said this? He meant that by giving himself into ransom he would save the sinners. "He was lifted up, and at once made Calvary the throne of reconciliation, after which he cried, 'It is finished.'"

"When Paul grasped the saltness of Jesus Christ, he remarked, 'But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ.' Here is a message for you. God loves you. What are you going to do with your sins? That you are in a vital one, and most important when dealing with the Christian doctrine. The first vision of sins came from the cross. It was there that God wished to portray the terrible sins of the world. Sinners, come to God by way of the cross. The invitation is open to you this morning. Why? Because Christianity is the only religion involving the cross. Christianity is the cure of redemption."

An instructive sermon was given by Dean Reilly who took as his text, "He who eats of my body and drinks of my blood shall have everlasting life and I shall raise him up on the last day."

He pointed out to the children the correct habits of living and the part which the church should play in their stay on the earth. He also told the children that the receiving of the Holy Communion is one of the greatest events of their life and will long be remembered by them as such.

Shortly before four this morning, the residence of Frank Myers, 220 Elliot street, was struck by lightning, torn from the walls of a bedroom the house badly damaged, and Mrs. Preiss, of Madison, Mrs. Myers' mother, badly bruised by the falling debris as she lay in the bed. That the house was not set on fire is the surprise as the bolt of lightning was extremely severe and the damage done was considerable. Aside from the injuries received, Mrs. Preiss, who is her experience, was badly shocked by watchman at the Calumet works, a few rods distant and saw the lightning as it descended.

HAVE VARIOUS VIEWS ON TELEPHONE CASE

RATE COMMISSION'S DECISION IN JANEVILLE CONTROVERSY IS WIDELY DISCUSSED.

VALENTINE IS READY

Manager of Rock County Company Is Willing to Carry Out the Order
Without Further Delay.

The decision of the Wisconsin railroad commission in which physical connection is ordered between the Wisconsin Telephone Company and the Rock County Telephone Company of this city for local rural and long distance service, has attracted wide attention throughout the country, in the current issue of Telephony there are given the views of a number of independent telephone managers.

Richard Valentine, secretary and general manager of the Rock County Telephone Company, says:

"We are ready to carry out the order of the commission, but I presume the Bell people will appeal from the decision of the commission just as they did in the La Crosse case. However, I am of the opinion that eventually the commission will be upheld by the courts."

Ohio Man's Opinion.

Samuel G. McMean, head of the proposed new merger of independent telephone companies in Ohio, writes:

"Physical connection and interconnection of business between competing telephone systems, as just ordered in Wisconsin, does not give me the horrors. But I do not foresee the final outcome clearly. I doubt if anyone does. If it is actually tried in Janeville, we all may get some valuable knowledge."

"Of one thing I am sure. That neither this nor any other special condition is going to stop the continued enlargement of the telephone art in America."

Edward M. Cooke, business manager of the Keystone Telephone System, of Philadelphia, says his company desires no connection with Bell local companies. He writes:

"It is possible that the circumstances surrounding the position of the Keystone Telephone Company are different from those attending the operations of other independent companies, but it may be stated as a general principle that we have no wish for physical connection of any kind with the Bell local companies. "I am personally of the opinion that so far as the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's long distance wires are concerned, that they are common carriers, with all that name implies, and will eventually be thrown open to the use of all telephone companies without discrimination, under proper regulations, and with a proper division of revenue. Whether the independent companies use them or not is a matter for each one to decide. "But the question of physical connection with local Bell companies is a different one. Our people here in Philadelphia and throughout our territory do not ask for physical connection between the two companies. The plant and equipment of the Keystone company are superior in quality to those of the Bell company."

Approve of Decision.

W. H. Bryant, vice president and general manager of the Home Telephone Company of Mobile, Alabama, approves the decision as follows:

"In my opinion, this decision is just and right and is what is to be expected of telephone companies in all states in the very near future. The public demands this physical connection and the public usually gets what it wants."

"I quite agree with the railroad commission in their statement that 'no charge could not be so adjusted so as to substantially preserve the status quo of the two companies.'"

"It seems to me that an adjustment of this matter could be arranged as follows:

"Should a subscriber of the Bell system desire local connection with a Bell subscriber, the charge to the Bell subscriber would be equal to the same charge that the company makes at its city pay stations, 20 per cent of this amount to go to the Bell company for collection and clerical work and 80 per cent to the independent company. The same to apply to reverse conditions; should the call originate at the Home station, 20 per cent of the charge to go to the Home company and 80 per cent to the Bell company."

"Long distance could be handled equitably, in my opinion, in the same manner, except that there would be no charge for the local connection. In other words put the subscriber of the Home station calling for a Bell connection on the same basis he would be if at the Bell pay station and vice-versa, put the subscriber of the Bell exchange calling for a Home connection on the same basis as if he would be at a Home pay station."

Secretary P. E. Mackintosh of the National Independent Telephone Association, writes:

"The June 2d decision of the Wisconsin Railroad Commission requiring physical connection at Janeville between the Wisconsin Telephone Company and the Rock County Telephone Company, is principally of interest in that it is a new affirmation of what is now becoming the regular declaration on the part of commissions that the telephone subscriber has a right to all the toll connection that can be supplied to him by the companies operating toll lines in his community."

"Formerly it was regarded as right and proper that the subscriber should choose which exchange and which toll line was of the most service to him, and, having made the choice, could not expect to make use of the toll lines of another company. Public opinion on this question, however, has changed rapidly in the last few years and now is regarded as unreasonable that any telephone company should refuse to make connections with competing companies which will enable it to give its subscribers unlimited toll service."

The vital problem now before the telephone industry is not shall there be any connection for toll service? but on what terms shall such connection be made? The Wisconsin commission in this decision has not indicated its attitude in this matter, and its further order will be awaited with interest."

The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth

By
ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Women from Walbrook"

Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

Copyright, 1914, by F. G. Brown & Co.
"Sue won't fail," Oswald spoke with quiet assurance. "Think over my suggestion about Mrs. Esterbrook's part. It is there where 'Cordelia' leaves her—the mother knows the daughter well."

"Are You Sure She Is So Bad?"

enough to realize it is good-by forever—that you want to cut out every spark of motherly feeling. Once or twice she almost pulls on the audience for sympathy. When 'Cordelia' shows her contempt for the mother and shatters her every ambition, there could not be a solitary throb of pity, remorse or love—it is not in her."

Oswald dropped the subject. Wentworth began to twist his hands nervously, a habit he had when disturbed. The Englishman sat back in silence, watching the rehearsal intently. Merry stood leaning against a stucco pillar. In this act he did not appear, but occasionally, against the sharp commands of the stage manager, his voice rang out in brief, concise suggestions.

"What a remarkable conception Merry has of every character," whispered Oswald. Enoch did not speak. "Gilbert resents my orders—in a fashion," continued the Englishman. "I told him to act on any suggestion that Merry offered. Gilbert would not say a word if you went back and threw in an idea here and there; a stage manager expects that from the author. I should think you would do it occasionally."

"It isn't in my line," Wentworth spoke suddenly. "Every move is put into the manuscript as plain as a pike-staff."

"Yes, but—" Oswald glanced at his companion curiously, then he dropped the subject. "It strikes me Merry has changed. The night I spoke to him on the L he was like a boy with some grand secret up his sleeve. Today he takes nothing but a half-languid interest in the whole thing. He is going to give a remarkable portrayal of 'John Esterbrook,' but when he is not acting he seems to have no interest in life. What do you say to that?"

"Don't ask me," murmured Wentworth. "He's a man of moods. I gave up trying to understand him years ago."

"Even when it came to the question of salary he didn't show any interest. He wouldn't set a figure. I don't know yet if he thinks the price I named was right. He closed with my first offer, signed the contract, then walked out. 'It's the biggest wage he ever drew.' 'He'll prove himself, worth every halfpenny of it."

Wentworth rose and pulled his hat from under the seat.

"Don't you want to see the rehearsal out?" asked Oswald suddenly.

"No, I'm going home. I may put your suggestion into shape while it is fresh in my mind."

Enoch paused in the theater to light a cigar. A newspaper man, who was an old friend, approached, full of eager inquiry about the progress of the play. Wentworth brushed him aside quickly and strode out to the street. A moment later he felt a twinge of remorse. The man's congratulations had been heart-felt. He could not shake off the memory of a startled astonishment that came into his face at the brusque reception. He was a good fellow, there had been pleasant companionship with him in the old days. The old days seemed ages ago, further back than the gaiety of childhood.

He left Broadway, walking with quick, nervous strides until he found himself far over on the East side, wandering aimlessly through wretched streets, populated by the drift from nations. The sidewalks were thronged with children. Occasionally Enoch swore beneath his breath as he escaped tumbling over them during his hurried, headlong progress. When he turned a corner he found his way blocked by a huge safe that was being hoisted into a warehouse. He glanced at the street, it was ankle-deep in slush. Suddenly the odor of hot bread was wafted to him from a little restaurant cavern below the sidewalk. He remembered he had eaten no breakfast, and it aroused a sudden sense of hunger. He ran quickly down the steps. The small dining room was remarkably clean. He sat down with a sense of satisfaction which seemed alien to such a place.

"Bring me coffee and a steak, a first-class steak done rare," he ordered. "Cook it carefully."

He was alone in the small room. It was quiet except for the shrill voices of children on the sidewalk. He had not known a moment of peace or solitude for months. All his life he had scoffed at nerves as a delusion. He wondered if he had been wrong, whether nerves might not be a stern reality. If they were, he had them. His mind went flashing over the events of the past fortnight, since the night, when, weary, harassed, and hopeless, he returned from Montreal to be met by Dorcas with the news that Merry had returned and was ready to begin rehearsals. It still exasperated him when he remembered how stubbornly he had refused details of Andrew's home-coming. All he learned was that the actor had seen Oswald and was rehearsing from morning till night.

A few days later, in the foyer of the Gotham, when he came face to face with Merry, the plan of their future intercourse was determined instantly. Wentworth had been in a mood to welcome reconciliation and friendship; Andrew was cold, courteous, and singularly unapproachable. Enoch's warmth was chilled and his pride aroused. He plunged fiercely into work, scarcely snatching time to eat or sleep. More than once Oswald had remonstrated; he could see that the man was working beyond the limit of human capacity. Work was the only thing that would whip retrospection from his mind. Drink had never been a temptation to Wentworth—it was nothing but a side issue to sociability—so he did not take to it now. He realized he was losing old friends; he had tossed one of them aside today.

The intuition which is bred by a guilty conscience began to play strange pranks with him. He felt as if Oswald had guessed his secret and was driving him into a corner by the suggestion that he remodel the play. He saw Dorcas each day grow colder and more suspicious. Merry at one glance had thrust him outside the pale of acquaintanceship. Within ten days "The House of Esterbrook" would have its first production.

Enoch shivered with apprehension as he thought of it. A queer thing had loomed up in his mind during the past few days. A decade ago a club friend with a fad for palmistry had insisted on reading his hand. The man prophesied a physical and moral downfall in the course of 12 years. Wentworth laughed at the idea, forgot it completely, then one night the memory of it came to him like a shot. He would have given all he possessed to return to the morning when Merry burst in upon him full of gaiety and hope. He could not go back; it was like unsmothering a tongue of string when one found no visible end where the task could be commenced.

He was aroused by a clatter of dishes. The waiter set the breakfast before him. As he ate he laid a morning paper on the table and began to read; there had been no chance earlier in the day to glance at it. The first thing his eye fell upon was a column about "The House of Esterbrook." The public seemed to await the production with unusual anticipation. Merry had the enthusiastic following which is so often bestowed upon an erratic, lovable genius. Wentworth's fame as a journalist was of long standing, and Oswald, Englishman as he was, had already won friends among newspaper men. Wentworth read it quickly, then he turned to the news of the day. Nothing interested him—the sparkle had gone out of life as the beads died on champagne. He drank a second, then a third cup of strong coffee, which acted upon him as whiskey does on some men.

When he climbed the uneven steps of the sidewalk the world had grown sunnier; there was a future before him, fame, riches, and the applause of millions. He reached Third avenue, ran up the stairs to the elevated, and, puffing slowly at a cigar, gazed on the rush of life below. He was deliberating how it was best to approach Merry on the subject of changing that second act. Oswald was a keen critic, and Enoch had seen the necessity of it himself; it was the one weak spot in the play. From the moment when he burned the labor of half a lifetime he realized his own incapacity for playwriting. He himself could do nothing to the drama, but he felt a chill of terror at the thought of speaking to Merry on the subject.

CHAPTER XI.

The Volks.

A city's electric lights were beginning to blaze through the twilight when Wentworth knocked at the door of Merry's dressing room.

"Come!" cried the actor sharply.

As Enoch entered he felt a throb of longing for the old warm friendship. Andrew's face paled for a moment as he looked up at his visitor. He nodded but did not speak. Kelly, who acted as Merry's valet during his prosperous seasons, lifted a heap of garments from a chair and set it before Enoch, who took it in silence. Andrew sat staring into a mirror while he experimented with a make-up for the broken-down convict in the third act. He dashed line after line into his face, blending each lightly into the grease paint. "Nobody" spoke—even Kelly seemed to have fallen under the spell of quiet. He knelt on the floor polishing shoes with stolid industry. Enoch wondered curiously what the keen old Irishman was thinking. He had known nothing between them but a most fraternal friendship. The silence became oppressive. At last Wentworth spoke.

"Are you going to be alone soon. Merry? I want to have a talk with you about business."

Andrew did not look up while he answered carelessly. "I'll be alone in a few minutes. Kelly has an errand to do at the tailor's. You may go now," he added, nodding to the valet; "there's no hurry about the shoes."

When the old man shut the door behind him Andrew did not turn his gaze from the mirror. The reflection of Wentworth's face was close beside his own. He could see that his visitor was ill at ease.

"Well?" he said interrogatively.

"Can't you turn round and face me while we talk?" asked the elder man impatiently.

Andrew wheeled about and his eyes met Wentworth's calmly. "Certainly, I can face you."

The red surged into Enoch's face, then hard lines wrinkled about his mouth. His mood had changed. He spoke with brutal consciousness.

"Oswald and I have decided that there ought to be a few changes made in the text of the play."

"Of your play," corrected Merry.

"There is one weak point in it," Enoch went on deliberately. "Mrs. Esterbrook draws on the sympathy of the audience for a few moments when 'Cordelia' leaves her. A woman of that caliber could have no such feeling."

"No?"

"No," Wentworth repeated the word almost furiously. He began to twist his hands.

"I suppose that act ought to be rewritten."

"Not rewritten, simply elaborated. Strike out some lines, put in others."

"Why don't you do it?"

"Why don't I do it?" Enoch jumped to his feet shaken by a sudden impulse of rage. "That's a nice question to ask me."

"What do you call this stuff?" he asked.

"Coffee," meekly replied the man, somewhat surprised.

"Coffee?" repeated Davis, with scorn. "I could put a coffee-bean into my mouth in New York City, dive into the Hudson, swim up to Yonkers, and I'll guarantee that any one could bail up much better coffee than this over the entire route."

The Parrot's Reason.

Why do parrots stay in the tropical forests instead of migrating northward like the robins? Undoubtedly because they realize that they are not good in pie—as some barbarians serve robins.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Little Talk To Housewives

"I wish I knew how to make money at home," said a young housekeeper to her neighbor the other day.

"Ah, ha! You too have been bitten by the get-rich-quick bug?"

No, but Mrs. Bronson makes money enough to admit of their having a vacation each season by the work she does at home.

When I hear her talk I long to go and do likewise.

"Well, you make delicious bread! You live near a store! Why not get busy? Put some of your baking in the grocery, run an ad to the effect that home-made bread, that is home-made, can be had two or three days each week. Begin on a small scale. Stick! And run your little ad persistently. If you really want to earn you can do it."

By persistently advertising you stamp indelibly on the mind of the public that you are doing one certain thing. What are you doing?

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, June 22, 1874—Union Temperance Meeting: Rev. John Russell in the Baptist church last evening was not favored with a big house, but those who were present appeared well pleased, the devotional exercises being conducted by Rev. J. P. Bates and Rev. George Williams. Other pastors were present.

Fatten's Grove, south of the high school building, is the one selected for the picnic and concert of the Concord
